The New Ballad of Lord Lovell.

The New Orleans Delta amuses its secessionist readers with the following clever parody of the "Ballad of Lord Lovell."

Lord Lovell he sat in the St. Charles hotel,
He sang by the stove and he hore,
That never he'd fly from a Yankee crew,
While he was a son of Mars.
He had fifty thousand gallant men,
Fifty thousand men had he,
Who all had sworn with him that they'd never
Surrender to any Yankee.
He had facts that no Yankee could take,
He had iron-clad boats a score,
And batteries all around the lake,
And along the river shore.
Sir Farragut came with a mighty fleet,
With a mighty fleet came he,
And Lord Lovell instantly began to retreat,
Before the first shot he could see.
His fifty thousand gallant men
Deserted down to thousands six,
They heard a distant cannon and then
Commenced a cutting their sticks.
"O, Larry, Lord Lovell!" Sir Farragut cried,
"O, Larry, Lord Lovell!" said he:
"I rather think of you, Lord Lovell replied,
"For I'm in a great hurry."
"I like the drink at St. Charles hotel,
But I never could bear strong Porter,
Especially when it served in the shell,
Or mixed in an iron mortar."
"I reckon you're right," Sir Farragut said,
"I reckon you're right," said he:
"For if my Porter should fly to your head,
A terrible smash there'd be."
Oh! a wonder it was to see them run,
A wonderful thing to see,
And the Yankees sailed up without shooting a gun,
And captured their great city.
Lord Lovell kept running all day and night,
Lord Lovell a running kept he,
For he knew that he was not a side the sight
Of a gun of a live Yankee.
When Lord Lovell's life was brought to a close
By a sharp shooting Yankee gunner,
From his head their sprouted a red nose,
From his feet—a Scarlet Runner.

VARIETY.

The Mayor of a small village in France having occasion to give a passport to a distinguished personage in his neighborhood who was blind of an eye, was in great embarrassment on coming to the description of his person. Fearful of offending the good man, he adopted the following ingenious expedient for avoiding the mention of his deformity. He wrote, "Black eyes, one of which is absent."

Riddles and Conundrums.
I came to a field and couldn't get through it.
So I went to a school and learnt how to do it.
—Fraser.
My first denotes a company.
My second shows a company.
My third calls for a company.
My whole denotes a company.
—Conundrum.
Why is a kiss like a sermon?—It requires two heads and an application.
Why are teeth like verbs?—They are regular, irregular, and defective.
Was ever high or low church?—Adam thought her Eve angelical.
If a bear were to go into line-drapers' shop, what would he want?—He would want muzzlin'.
Why is it impossible for a person who lies to believe in the existence of young ladies?—He takes every Miss for a myth.
When are weeds not weeds?—When they become widows.
In what part of the Times can we find broken English?—The bankrupt list.
What part of a fish is like the end of a book?—The fin.
Which of the English monarchs had most reason to complain of his laundress?—John, when his baggage was lost in the Wash.
When was Napoleon most shabbily dressed?—When he was out at Elba (elbow).
What fish is most valued by a happy wife?—Her-ling.
What part of a fish weighs most?—The scales.
KINGDOM COMING.—The last new nigger song threatens to be as popular about the country as Dixie once was, or as John Brown's Soul now is. It is called "Kingdom Coming," and this is the way it goes:
Say, darkeys have you seen de master,
With de mustache on his face,
Go long de road some time this morning,
Like he going to leave dis place.
He seen a smoke way up de river,
Where de Lincoln gun-battle lay,
He took his hat and let berry sudden,
And he say de darkeys laugh.
De darkeys laugh he he!
It must be now de kingdom coming
And de year of Jubilee.
NOTHING LIKE ECONOMY.—"A stitch in time saves nine," says poor Richard. This is a good hint at the economy of labor. Economy in all other respects is a matter just as worthy of the study of all classes of people. The economical man always grows rich; he can't help it. The improvident man always grows poor; he can't help it either. And remember, too, that economy does not mean parsimony. It does not mean biggardlessness. It does not necessitate a miserly disposition. To economize simply means to waste nothing. It means to enjoy life in a rational manner, according to your abilities, but to throw nothing away. It means to save, not squander, that for which you have no immediate use. This is economy; and it is positively wonderful to note how these small savings accumulate, until they constitute a sum of imposing importance. Money is made with comparative ease by almost everybody. Everybody, therefore, would soon grow rich here if they practiced the same economy they practice abroad. But they don't, and hence the difference. We are all extravagant here, after our own fashion; and it is not the lack of money earned, but the amount of money idly expended, that keeps most people poor who have plenty of work and are industrious. They are not saving. They are not economical. If you see an old rag, put it away in the rag-bag. If you see a pin, pick it up, and you will have one pin less to purchase. If you feel inclined to purchase a new thing of any kind while your old one is still available, put away the thought for "another season." In this way avoid all really useless outlays, and make everything go as far as respectability will permit. As a consequence you will soon find out the value of economy. You will find that your funds begin to exhibit a surplus. You will find, moreover, that your health and strength improve by abstaining from foolish indulgences, and that the self-respect you feel in maintaining such a control over your wanton desires, is worth everything to you in the way of honest gratification.
